A major epidemic of the mosquito-borne illness, which can be fatal for children and pregnant women, has been reported in 21 countries since 2013. Countries are now reporting four times as many dengue cases than ever before, mostly in Latin America and Asia, after an unprecedented resurgence of the virus, which is transmitted mainly by the Aedes aegypti mosquito. "Given the high disease burden, it's vital that action is taken to halt the spread of the virus," says Dr Ibhawoh Zah, a WHO official based in the agency's Geneva headquarters.[Edema of erythematous type in periungual Fabry disease]. The authors report a case of periungual edema of erythematous type in a man, aged 20, with Fabry disease. The patient consulted for a painless, erythematous edema limited to the finger tips and the nail bed of his left thumb, which had been present for 8 months. A painless ulcerated lesion was found at the index finger tip on the left hand. Family history for Fabry disease was positive. Biological analysis confirmed the presence of low alpha-galactosidase A activity (1 % of normal), but hemizygosity was not demonstrated. A skin biopsy revealed spongiosis, mucin deposition and tortuous capillaries on the dermoepidermal junction. Glycosphingolipid deposits were discovered using chlorella algae agglutination technique and fluorescent antibodies. Based on this finding, Fabry disease diagnosis was made in the absence of family history. The patient responded to enzymatic replacement.Q: TSQL - Latest Date in Query How do I get the latest date where something is true? Not the max, but the one where something actually happens.
