What's New In?

Introduction Do you often find yourself using a PC, and have a feeling that there is something missing or should be better? Would you like to install some custom apps, but find the traditional approach very boring? Would you like to add some skins, change some wallpapers or even remove certain components? Would you like to use Win 10 but don't want to install all of those bloatware items? We are talking about the new MSMG toolkit. This is an advanced tool, developed by Neowin team and it provides a very easy and quite approachable toolset for Windows. This is something like a suite for Microsoft, in that way it has quite some great features and capabilities. This toolkit allows you to create your own tailored Windows installation, where you are able to remove unwanted apps, add some skins, change some themes, or even remove certain components. How to get the toolkit? In order to get this tool, all you have to do is visit the official website, and if you want to download the toolkit, you can do that via the given download link. Downloading the toolkit When the download is complete, you will get an executable file called MSMG_Toolkit_v1.0.exe, that you will be able to run as administrator. After you start the program, the toolkit will ask for some information that will be required in order to create your customized Windows installation. And that is all, you have just created your own customized Windows installation, without having to waste your time in performing the lengthy installation process, one by one. How to use the toolkit? Before you start working with this tool, you will need to ensure you have installed the required prerequisites. The prerequisites include: - Command Prompt (CMD) - DVD or ISO images - Unetbootin or Win32DiskImager Once the prerequisites are installed, start the MSMG toolkit. On the main window, you will see the Welcome screen, where you have to fill in the information that the toolkit requires. The first step that you should take is to select the source DVD folder from where you want to extract the contents. Next, you will have to select the edition of the Windows you want to create your customized Windows installation with. Then, the toolkit will open the customizing app, where you will be able to choose the skins and themes that you want to install, as well as, you can also remove some components that you don't want to have on your customized Windows. Once you are done configuring, just click on the "Start customizing" button. Then you will see a message saying that the customizing process has finished. Before you start the customizing process, you will have to choose
